

Cat Supply Checklist

Are you prepared to bring your new family addition home? Good Mews has compiled a checklist of all the items you will need to help make the introduction of your new cat a success!

- Scoopable, Clumping Litter (unscented may be preferred by your cat)
- Litter Box (at least 1 for each cat in your household) and Litter Scoop
- Cat Food: Kittens are on Science Diet Kitten Formula, Adults are on Science Diet Adult Optimal Care. Both kittens and cats eat Science Diet Adult Canned Food.
- Toys (interactive toys like feathers and laser lights and other toys like balls and furry mice)
- Scratching Post or Cat Tree with scratching surfaces (cats may have a preference; many like sisal covered posts). The post must be tall enough for your cat to stretch up on and must not be wobbly when the cat rubs against it.
- Grooming Supplies: Brush/Comb and Cat Nail Clippers for trimming claws
- Cat Bed (or other bedding that your cat may like)
- Break-Away Collar with ID Tag (you can make one of these at most pet supply stores)
- Carrier (hard sided preferred)

Good Mews does NOT recommend the following items as they can lead to behavioral/health problems:

- Litter boxes with hoods
- Litter box plastic liners
- Plastic food and water bowls
- Collars without a break-away safety latch

Your Newly Adopted Cat

Cats can be very sensitive to changes in their lives. Even a positive change, like going to a new home, can sometimes cause a cat to become a little stressed. Just like people, stress can lower the immune system, making your new feline friend more susceptible to coming down with an upper respiratory infection (a cat cold). Good Mews sends each cat home with powdered Lysine that can be mixed in canned food to help boost their immune system. However, if you notice your new cat isn't his energetic self, isn't eating well, is sneezing or sounds congested, then just make an appointment with your vet and get him checked out. Your vet may prescribe some medicine to help your cat get over his cold and back to his active self.
